> Alpha Capital Group's Alpha Pro 8 is a two-step evaluation with 8% and 5% targets, a 4% daily loss limit, an 8% static maximum loss, and a scaling route to $2 million. Fast stated payout processing and four platform choices are positives, but funded-account weekend restrictions, a five-minute news window, and tight automation and copy-trading rules mean the programme requires close rule compliance.

Score breakdown

Trust · 3.2 / 5

Alpha Capital Group maintains detailed first-party help documentation for its current programme, but the evaluation remains a simulated proprietary trading service rather than a regulated retail brokerage account.

Cost · 3.7 / 5

The reviewed 25K Alpha Pro 8 on-demand reference configuration is stated at $177; pricing varies by size, target, and add-ons.

Payout speed · 4.0 / 5

Biweekly eligibility begins 14 days after the first Qualified-account trade, and the firm states approved performance fees are normally processed within two business days.

Drawdown rules · 3.0 / 5

Alpha Pro 8 uses a 4% balance-based daily loss limit and an 8% static maximum loss, providing a clear but relatively tight daily risk budget.

Scaling plan · 4.1 / 5

Each 10% gain can increase the account by 10% of the initial balance, with a published cumulative maximum of $2 million.

Trading platform · 4.1 / 5

The current official platform list includes MT5, cTrader, DXtrade, and TradeLocker, although automation and copy features vary materially by platform and region.

Customer support · 3.8 / 5

The firm maintains a detailed help centre and support routes; this review did not independently time a support response.

Account opening · 3.6 / 5

Alpha Pro 8 has two stages with three minimum trading days each and 8% then 5% profit targets.

Restrictions · 2.8 / 5

Qualified accounts cannot hold over weekends, news entries and exits have a five-minute window, and fully automated EAs are prohibited.
