> BrightFunded has clear one-step and two-step targets plus a strong scaling formula. Default payouts are slower than the homepage headline suggests: the first split is after 30 days, then every 14 days unless an add-on changes the schedule.

Score breakdown

Trust · 3.6 / 5

BrightFunded publishes detailed rules, but the accounts use virtual capital.

The help centre identifies funded accounts as demo accounts with virtual capital. Evaluation, payout and scaling terms are public and dated, which helps with verification, but customers should not treat the program as a regulated brokerage account.

Cost · 3.7 / 5

The evaluation fee is one-time and funded accounts have no recurring charge.

Pricing depends on account size and plan. The firm states that the evaluation fee is paid once and that no recurring funded-account fee follows. Faster payout timing and a 90% split are optional checkout extras, so the advertised base price may not reflect the preferred setup.

Payout speed · 3.5 / 5

The base payout cycle is slower than the marketing headline.

The first default reward split is available 30 days after the first funded trade. Later requests are available every 14 days. A weekly schedule is an add-on. The base trader split is 80%, with 90% available as an add-on and 100% possible after scaling.

Drawdown rules · 3.3 / 5

Two-step plans use static drawdown; the one-step plan trails.

2-Step Bright uses 4% daily and 8% maximum static drawdown. Classic uses 5% daily and 10% maximum static drawdown. The one-step plan is tighter at 3% daily and 6% trailing maximum drawdown.

Scaling plan · 4.0 / 5

The scaling formula is specific and has no published upper cap.

After four consecutive months, BrightFunded can add 30% of the original account size if the trader posts profit in at least two months, reaches 10% total profit, completes two payouts and has a non-negative balance. The trader must ask support to apply the scale-up.

Trading platform · 3.8 / 5

MT5, cTrader and DXtrade are the supported trading routes.

BrightFunded lists MetaTrader 5, cTrader and DXtrade. Its help centre says expert advisers are allowed on supported platforms, but API automation is not supported on DXtrade.

Customer support · 3.7 / 5

The help centre covers the rules in useful detail.

BrightFunded maintains separate articles for evaluation rules, payouts, scaling and restricted strategies. Live chat is available for account questions. Public response-time measurements are not supplied.

Account opening · 3.4 / 5

Traders can choose one evaluation stage or two.

The one-step plan has one 10% target. Bright and Classic each have two stages, and all evaluation routes have no time limit. Funded activation requires identity verification with an accepted ID document.

Restrictions · 3.0 / 5

Weekend holding is allowed, but funded news and account-linking rules are strict.

Funded traders cannot open or close positions within five minutes of listed major news. Copying is limited to accounts owned by the same person, and hedging across accounts, firms or platforms is prohibited. BrightFunded also maintains a restricted-country list.

Frequently asked questions

How many stages does BrightFunded have? −

The one-step plan has one evaluation stage. The Bright and Classic plans each use a Challenge and Verification stage.

What is BrightFunded's default profit split? −

The default trader split is 80%. A 90% split is available as an add-on, and the scaling plan can raise it to 100%.

When is the first BrightFunded payout?

The default first reward split is available 30 days after the first funded trade. Later requests are every 14 days, with a weekly add-on available.

Can I hold trades over the weekend?

Yes. BrightFunded's current help article permits weekend holding.

Can I trade news at BrightFunded?

Evaluation accounts can trade news. Funded accounts restrict opening or closing trades within five minutes of specified major releases, subject to the firm's published take-profit exception.
